

Revolutionary New Line of Positioning Sponges Comes from Longtime Radiology Accessory Innovator Techno-Aide

Techno-Aide, a Nashville-based radiology accessories manufacturer and distributor, has recently launch a new line of radiology sponges that will revolutionize the radiology imaging industry.

Since 1970, prominent Nashville-based radiology accessories manufacturer Techno-Aide has been transforming the medical industry with their state-of-the-art X-ray accessory products. In keeping with their goal to help Radiology Technologists become as efficient as possible, the company just announced a groundbreaking new line of positioning sponges that don't leave lines from artifacts on radiology images. The Techno-Aide Stealth Core and Stealth Cote positioning sponges are unlike anything available on the market today. Plus, they feature an antifungal, antibacterial, non-allergenic, self-deodorizing, stain resistant and easy-to-clean finish, and complies with California TB#117-2013 standards.

With a Techno-Aide exclusive design, the Stealth Core and Stealth Cote sponges maintain all the standard features Technologists have come to expect without leaving lines on radiology images. As with other Techno-Aide products, the Stealth Core and Stealth Cote sponges are proudly manufactured in Tennessee and promptly shipped the day after they're ordered. While this cutting-edge technology solves a decades-old problem, the new line is just one in a number of high quality, competitively priced products to come from the Tennessee company. In addition to the Stealth Core and Stealth Cote sponges and the array of radiology accessories available on their website, Techno-Aide also manufactures custom designed sponges, allowing them to meet any and every need a client may have.

Founded in 1970 by the then Chief Technologist at Nashville's Baptist Hospital, Techno-Aide began as a company manufacturing X-ray identification markers and X-Ray copiers out of a dining room. In 1979, the operation moved into a larger space, which they quickly outgrew. Over the next five years, the company continued to expand and find new homes to accommodate their rapid growth, adopting the name Techno-Aide in 1986 and building a network of dealers to make the sales and customer support process even more personal. It has been that dedication to their customers, bolstered by their one-of-a-kind products, that has established Techno-Aide as a nationally recognized supplier of X-ray accessory products and a leader in their industry. For more than 40 years, the company has continually pushed forward in the medical field, asking how they can make the job of the Radiology Technologist more efficient and accurate. Their exciting new line of products is a very clear answer to that question.

To view the full Techno-Aide catalog and see every shape and size of Stealth Core and Stealth Cote sponges available, or to order custom sponges, visit techno-aide.com or call one of their customer service representatives at 1-800-251-2629.

###